A Message from Fr. Bill ...

This summer we tried something new - having the offices closed on Fridays. Since this did not seem to have had a negative impact on the parish's mission, offices will continue to remain closed on Fridays. However, Fridays will be a work day for parish staff. The intention of having the offices closed is to provide uninterrupted blocks of time to complete work that requires focused attention. This decision will be re-evaluated in December.

Thoughts for Today's Readings

To the Point: In this gospel, Jesus gives us some clear directions for the ongoing life in community we are still living out. Sin and offense will never be absent, even within the Christian community; our human tendency to err is too strong. But our unity is too important to let that reality stand alone. Instead, we are to strive to lovingly win back over those who have hurt us; first by ourselves, then with the support of the community. But Jesus does not tell us to withstand endless abuse; he introduces the idea here that setting boundaries can be an acceptable form of loving others. This ought to be discerned within the context of unity as an important value; gathering together in Jesus' name is one way to secure his presence.

To Experience: This gospel implies the need not only for fraternal correction but also for forgiveness; when we inform another of the ways they have hurt us, we are meant to be truly reconciled with them rather than holding it over them or imagining ourselves morally superior. Jesus' instructions here are a recipe for letting go of grudges and moving on to fuller reconciliation.

1. Have you ever needed to deliver a correction to another member of the Christian community? How do you feel it went? Could you have delivered it more lovingly?
2. Have you ever received correction from a peer? How did it make you feel? Did it help you improve in virtue?
3. Unity is presented here as a strong value for the Christian community. What do you see as some of the primary challenges to Christian unity? How could you play a part in overcoming them?

Year of Mary

"If you warn the wicked to turn from his way... you will deliver your soul."
Ezekiel 33:9

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

Muscles that are never challenged, never grow stronger. Analogously, we cannot grow spiritually if we are not challenged. Christ wants to make us better disciples, so we should expect the words of his Gospel not only to comfort, but also to challenge.

This Sunday's Gospel begins with these challenging words, "If your brother sins against you, go and tell him his fault..." (Matthew 18:15). The plain meaning of Jesus' words is that he expects his followers to confront wrongdoing. While this Gospel requirement has never been easy to put into practice, at present times it seems to be particularly unpopular. But nevertheless, these are Jesus' words.

Based upon this passage of the Gospel, the Christian tradition has taught that "admonishing the sinner" is one of the seven Spiritual Works of Mercy."

How exactly is admonishing the sinner merciful?

The first thing that we have to keep in mind is that sinful behaviors cause great harm. They cause harm to others. They cause offense to God. And, upon reflection, they harm the sinner himself. So admonition is first of all a mercy, since it seeks to reduce harm to others, seeks to prevent offending God, and seeks to draw someone else to a better life.

When I read this passage, I think of myself not as the one who is sent to "go and tell the faults," but rather I think of myself as the "one who commits the sins against others." Everyone has been in the position at some point when they have inadvertently caused harm or offense to someone else. At times, I feel I have a particular skill at unintentionally "stepping in it." I trust your goodwill that you would not cause this hurt to another person, if you had known better. People often do not know the harm that their words, actions, and behaviors cause to other people.

So it is merciful to admonish them, since it brings them to a greater self-knowledge and provides them with the opportunity to repair the harm that they have caused. When admonishment or fraternal correction is done well, it becomes an occasion of grace for both people involved. It is true that many people do not receive admonishment well, even admonishment that is offered in the most charitable way possible. However, Christ makes it clear that we are not responsible for the result. We are not responsible for how the other person responds to our admonishment. We are simply responsible for offering those words with humility and loving charity.

Blessings,
Fr. Bill

The Story of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross

Early in the fourth century, Saint Helena, mother of the Roman Emperor Constantine, went to Jerusalem in search of the holy places of Christ's life. She razed the second-century Temple of Aphrodite, which tradition held was built over the Savior's tomb, and her son built the Basilica of the Holy Sepulcher on that spot. During the excavation, workers found three crosses. Legend has it that the one on which Jesus died was identified when its touch healed a dying woman.

The cross immediately became an object of veneration. At a Good Friday celebration in Jerusalem toward the end of the fourth century, according to an eyewitness, the wood was taken out of its silver container and placed on a table together with the inscription Pilate ordered placed above Jesus' head: Then "all the people pass through one by one; all of them bow down, touching the cross and the inscription, first with their foreheads, then with their eyes; and, after kissing the cross, they move on."

To this day, the Eastern Churches, Catholic and Orthodox alike, celebrate the Exaltation of the Holy Cross on the September anniversary of the basilica's dedication. The feast entered the Western calendar in the seventh century after Emperor Heraclius recovered the cross from the Persians, who had carried it off in 614, 15 years earlier. According to the story, the emperor intended to carry the cross back into Jerusalem himself, but was unable to move forward until he took off his imperial garb and became a barefoot pilgrim.

Reflection

The cross is today the universal image of Christian belief. Countless generations of artists have turned it into a thing of beauty to be carried in procession or worn as jewelry. To the eyes of the first Christians, it had no beauty. It stood outside too many city walls, decorated only with decaying corpses, as a threat to anyone who defied Rome's authority—including Christians who refused sacrifice to Roman gods. Although believers spoke of the cross as the instrument of salvation, it seldom appeared in Christian art unless disguised as an anchor or the Chi-Rho until after Constantine's edict of toleration.
