Thoughts for Today's Readings

To the Point: This gospel passage jumps from Luke's introductory words to his fourth chapter. After Jesus' infancy and baptism and temptation in the desert, his public ministry begins. This is different from the gospel we heard last week, in which John shows Jesus cajoled into beginning his public work with a miracle at a wedding. Here, Jesus begins with preaching—he is one of many teachers in the synagogues, operating within the existing framework of his time. Word spreads about him, though—there is something special about him. When he returns to his hometown, he reveals himself as someone totally new: he is the One of whom Isaiah speaks, the One whom God has anointed.

To Experience: In both the gospel and the first reading, the assembled people listen intently to the word of God. How often do we listen so intently at liturgy? How well do we hear the Scriptures proclaimed on Sunday? Consider how you might engage with the Scriptures outside of Mass in order to prepare to hear them more fully at liturgy.

1. Share a favorite Scripture passage. Why is it meaningful to you? What does it say to you about who God is?
2. Envision yourself in the assembly at Nazareth. How do you respond when Jesus announces that he is the fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy?
3. The psalm sings praises to the Lord's commands. Which commands do you find it difficult to follow? How might God be inviting you to receive them as a gift?

Dear Friends in Christ,

The third Sunday's Gospel presents a profound encounter between the risen Christ and His disciples, offering us a clear reminder of fruitless fishing. Jesus appears, guiding the disciples to an abundant catch. This moment reveals that success in mission comes not from our efforts alone but from trusting and following the Lord.

At this miracle, Jesus turns to Peter, asking, "Do you love me," three times, echoing Peter's threefold denial. Each time, Peter affirms his love, and Jesus responds with a mission: "Feed my lambs. Tend my sheep." This dialogue restores Peter and commissions him as the leader of the early Church. It's a reminder that no matter our past failings, Jesus calls us to love Him and live out His mission with renewed purpose.

Last week, I read a book written by Tim Glemkowski. His book "Made for Mission - Renewing Your Parish Culture," aligns beautifully with this Gospel. The author challenges us to recognize that our parishes are not simple places of maintenance or routine worship but vibrant communities called to be missionaries. He also mentions about the 'New Evangelization' of St. John Paul II. The New Evangelization is a call by Saint John Paul II for Catholics to deepen their faith and proclaim the Gospel to others. It's a call to evangelize those who have already been baptized, and to reach out to people who are in need of a new encounter with Christ.

As a parish, we are invited to embrace a culture of mission, where every person feels equipped and inspired to share the Gospel in their daily lives. This starts with encountering Jesus ourselves, growing in love for Him, and then stepping out to serve others - our families, coworkers, neighbors, and beyond.

Just as Jesus called Peter and the disciples to "cast their nets" in new ways, He calls each of us to move beyond complacency and live as intentional disciples.

Let us reflect today: Where is Jesus asking us to cast our nets? How can we, as individuals and as a parish, respond to His call to feed His sheep and renew our mission? Trust that with Christ's guidance, our efforts will bear fruit in abundance.

Father Josuwa

Today this scripture is fulfilled in your hearing.
